LINES I and beautifying the Hair, promoting its On the occasion of the inauguration of Washington's Equestrian Statue, at Richmond, Va.,

February 22d, 1858. BY W. B. MORTON. What means this vast and joyous crowd,

What means this scene so rare, And why these cheers so long and loud, That rend the very air ? What means this lively throb of drum,

As far as eye can see that comes In one unbroken chain !

Before us spread to-day? Tis plain to tell what this may mean, This pageant-like occasion,

We come to show to all the world, Our reverence for the man, Who won that flag which now unfurl'd,

But gaze on you expressive bronze. The tale may there be told, For round it cling the dearest bonds,

Virginia! noble Mother State. There stands thy Father-Son, The image of the good and great, The immortal Washington!

He took from chaos this our land, From slaves he made us free, And bade "our country" be.

To tell his matchless tame, For in each freeman's inmost heart, Will ever live his name. THE BIBLE.

The following lines, written by a mother in a Bible-the gift to her son-are, no doubt. familiar to many of our readers, but they are Remember, love, who gave thee this, When other days shall come-

Remember, 'twas a mother gave The gift to one she'd die to save. The holiest for her son; And from the gift of God above

She chose a goodly one; She chose for her beloved boy The source of life, and light, and joy; And bade him keep the gift-that when The parting hour should come

They might have hope to meet again,

She said his faith in that would be Sweet incense to her memory. And should the scoffer, in his price, Laugh that fond gift to scorn,

That he from youth had borne! She bade him pause and ask his breast, If he, or she, had loved him best? A parent's blessing on her son Goes with this holy thing; The love that would retain the one
